About the Film

*In Pursuit of Silence* is a meditative documentary film about the value of silence and the impact of noise on our lives. From the desert fathers of the third century ad who became a model for monasticism to John Cage's seminal silent composition 4'33" which would go onto inspire a generation of artists, humankind has had a long fascination with silence. In Pursuit of Silence is the first comprehensive look at this topic whose many dimensions lie at the heart of so much of human progress. The story of silence and our long history with it unfolds against a backdrop of the increasing aural complexity of our modern world and the toll it's taking on a psychological and physiological level. Five decades worth of research supports the notion that noise is a serious environmental hazard - only second to air pollution according to the World Health Organization - and is harming us on a multitude of levels. Silence as a resource for respite and renewal from the sensory onslaught of our modern lives is more important now than ever before.
